Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Observations On the Proposed Amendment to the Charter

IN last Friday's Daily Press there appeared a city legal advertisement, covering six charter amendments, as proposed by the city council and drawn up by the city attorney.

For the information of our readers we have given a great deal of time to the studying of these proposed amendments and submit our findings to you.

* * *

Amendment No. 1

AS explained by the city attorney, this amendment deals with the construction of streets and other local improvements—its purpose is to make it possible to provide a revolving fund to use in the construction, reconstruction and repair of all kinds of public work and improvements, including the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, extension, maintenance and repair of any public utility, owned or proposed to be acquired by said city. The method used to secure money for this revolving fund is etiher by the issuing of bonds or by a special tax levy.

It is our opinion that this amendment would be acceptable if it stopped with street work, but by the addition of public utilities the council gains authority to acquire any of the following: Telephone or any other means of communication, street railway or any other means of transportation, including bus lines. We do not think any council of any city should have as much authority as this and we would sugegst that this amendment be changed, so as not to include public utilities.

* * *

Amendment No. 2

THIS amendment gives the city manager authority to increase any employe's salary up to a maximum amount, which is set by ordinance, and also permits the filling of a vacancy at a salary lower than the place had been paying. It also permits the council, through resolution, to create temporary positions without limit, for a period not exceeding six months.

The first part of this proposed amendment looks O. K. to us, but the last part should be eliminated as it puts too much temptation in the way of adding to the city's force.

* * *

Amendment No. 3

THIS amendment increases the petty cash fund from $100 to $1000.

This seems to be quite a jump. One would think that one-half of this amount ought to be sufficient inasmuch as the city up to this time has been getting along on one-tenth the amount asked.

* * *

Amendment No. 4

THIS amendment cuts down the time limit on passing ordinances from five to two days.

We would not recommend the passing of this amendment, for it would give too much opportunity for snap judgment.

Five days for consideration of any ordinance is surely short enough time.

* * *

Amendment No. 5

THIS amendment permits the council to fill vacancies in elective offices, appointee to hold office until next regular election. This excludes the board of education, which is permitted to fill vacancies in its body by a majority vote of its own members.

This amendment we would recommend.

* * *

Amendment No. 6

THIS amendment changes the time of residence necessary before an appointment can be made for the position of city attorney. It sets the time of residence from two years, as it now stands, to that of being a qualified voter of the city.

This we think a good change.

* * *

IN studying over the city charter there are a few changes which we think would be beneficial.

In section 3 of article 10, which classifies the division of the public welfare department, it includes playgrounds and parks. It is our opinion that this article should be amended so as to exclude the parks and playgrounds and a separate department for these be created.

In section 1, article 11, which outlines the duties of the controller, no provision of any kind is made by which the controller shall make any financial statement of any kind.

* * *

PROVISION should be made in the charter whereby he should be required to submit to the city council at its second regular meeting of each month, a report showing the condition of each fund in the city treasury, the amount withdrawn from each fund during the preceding month and any other special reports the council may require. He should also make and present a report to the council on or before the middle of August each year, showing all the financial transactions of the city for the fiscal year ending the 30th day of June preceding.

* * *

IN section 2 of article 11, which outlines the duties of the treasurer, no provision is made whereby financial reports are submitted by him. We would suggest that at the second meeting of each month of the city council the treasurer shall make out and present to the council a full and complete statement of the receipts and expenditures for the preceding calendar month.

* * *

IN section 3 of article 13, relating to the city library, no provision is made whereby the library board shall submit a budget, covering estimated expenses for the coming year. This should be done by it, the same as other departments, to enable the city council to fix the tax levy in an intelligent way. It should also be required to submit an annual report to the city council, showing receipts and disbursements.

* * *

IF changes are to be made in our city charter, let us have them for the better. Every citizen should study over the proposed amendments in order that he may vote for or against them, when the proper time comes.

His friends predict that he will win the office hands down.

LEGION WOMEN SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

Three Automobile Loads Respond to Disabled Men's Appeal

Interested glances followed an automobile filled to overflowing with flowers which traversed the streets of Glendale this morning. Mrs. George Kaeding, president of the American Legion Auxiliary of this city was at the wheel, and seated beside her was Mrs. Nellie Snow Hyer, chairman of hospitalization. The flowers were enroute to the Soldiers' home at Sawtelle where 264 veterans of the World war, victims of tuberculosis, are being cared for—besides 80 others suffering from various disabilities. This was but one of three auto loads of flowers which had been brought to the city schools in response to the request of Mrs. Hyer, and which the three autos had collected. Mrs. Hyer, who makes many visits to the boys at Sawtelle, recently asked them what they would like most and they answered, "flowers." She lost no time in sending the word where it would do the most good, and the children responded gladly. When they turned in their floral treasures this morning, many asked if they couldn't do it regularly, and Mrs. Hyer is considering giving the boys a flower shower once a month.

COMMUNITY HOLDS ITS BIG SING

First of Real Work Draws Huge Choral Together at the High

300 IN ATTENDANCE

New Executive Secretary of Community Service Is Introduced

The first big "sing" to be put on under Glendale Community Service took place Monday night at the high school auditorium, under the leadership of Alexander Stewart, with over 300 people present. R. E. Tucker, the new Community Service executive for Glendale, was present and was introduced by V. M. Hollister.

The program started at 8 o'clock with the community singing of a group of familiar songs, such as "Santa Lucia," "Smiles," "Auld Lang Syne," "Just a Song at Twilight," and others, led by Mr. Stewart, and with Mrs. Gertrude Champlain Erb at the piano. Francis J. W. Henry led in the singing of one of Harry Lauder's newest songs, "Singing is the Thing," and also in the singing of "Start It With a Smile," the words for which were written by Richardson D. White of Glendale. The accompaniment for these two songs was furnished by the Scouts Orchestra, the members of which are Lucille Beach, Dallas Kalbaugh, Arthur Barton and Horace Brown.

A. L. Baird, chairman of the music committee of Glendale Community Service, was present and spoke very highly of the excellent work which has been done by Mr. Stewart in training the class of volunteer song leaders. On behalf of the class he presented Mr. Stewart with a token of appreciation. Mr. Stewart, in responding, spoke of the splendid co-operation which had been shown the music committee and song leaders during his work in Glendale.

V. M. Hollister, president of Glendale Community Service, was introduced by Mr. Baird and spoke of making Glendale a "singing town," which, he said, would make of it a "city of neighbors," as well as a "city of homes," by bringing together the people as individuals and not as representatives of various organizations. He said "it is the desire of Glendale Community Service to have every meeting in the city open and close with a song." Mr. Hollister also spoke of the splendid work being done by the drama section of Glendale Community Service, which has already put on a play and is planning a pageant for this summer. He then introduced Mr. Tucker.

The musical program for the evening was then continued. This included two vocal solos by Glenn Dolberg, accompanied at the piano by Miss Bowling, "My Dreams" and "An Evening Love Song." A quartet from the Junior auxiliary of the Glendale Music Club gave two very excellent vocal numbers, accompanied at the piano by Miss Lois Olmstead. A. R. Burton, a newcomer to Glendale, accompanied at the piano by Miss Lila Leitch, sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." H. S. Robinson, who is a tenor soloist of the Ffrst Methodist church of Los Angeles, sang "The Horse and It's Rider," written by Arthur Blakely of Glendale, who accompanied him at the piano. Miss Leitch acted as accompanist for the remainder of the community singing. On taking a vote it was unanimously decided to continue the community sings. In this connection Mr. Stewart told of the possibilities of an exchange of talent between the various cities who are interested in Community Service work.

Two automobile accidents occurred in Glendale Monday. Machines driven by Haskell A. Thompson, 855 Stanley avenue, Eagle Rock, and J. C. Merrill of Pasadena, collided at the corner of Colorado and Adams at 7:40 o'clock last night. Little damage was done.

Earl E. Holwick, 1468 South San Fernando road, and a person whose name could not be learned, were operating machines that collided at the intersection of Broadway and Central, at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Except for the bending of fenders no damage was done.

PAST COMMANDERS MEET AT TEMPLE COMMANDERY

Mattison B. Jones Is In Charge of the Gathering of the Year

The Knights Templar present at the meeting of the Glendale commandery Monday evening when "past commanders' night" was observed, report a very fine and impressive session, marked by dignity, sincerity and deep religious feeling.

On past commanders' night one year ago, Ed Daniels, first commander of the commandery, was in charge. This time the place of honor was given to Mattison B. Jones, second commander of the organization. Ed Daniels served as generaliissimo, Clem Moore as captain general, Charles Peckham as senior warden, Dave Crofton as junior warden, Percy Priaulx as warden, Daniel Campbell as standard bearer, George U. Moyse as sword bearer, Charles Rittenhouse as recorder and Ben Hagen as prelate. Several visitors who were present and were past commanders also participated. A. L. Carroll was first guard, Mr. Methven was second guard, Robert Wilcox of Los Angeles commandery No. 9 was third guard and they were assisted by E. O. Carlyle of Arizona.

It was a fine demonstration of the beautiful ritual and of the way in which it has become indelibly impressed upon the memories of these past commanders.

The occasion was of special interest to Mattison B. Jones because Dwight Stephenson, his close friend and law partner, was a candidate for the Order of the Temple.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, speeches were made by all the past commanders present, both local and from abroad.

Mr. Stephenson responded to call and described the impression which the work had made upon him. He said he was at one time rather skeptical in regard to what is called "higher Masonry," but after taking this Temple degree, all that was gone, and he had nothing but the sincerest appreciation of the teachings of the order. He could now easily understand why Masons were so proud and happy in the work and why there was such a strong bond of sympathy between them. He had been looking forward to the occasion, he said, for quite a number of years; that this was the third memorable evening in his Masonic career. The first evening was when he received his first degree in Masonry; the second, when he was made master of blue lodge, the third and climax being now.

IS SKULL OF FIRST MAN FOUND?

Discovery in Brazil Points to Citizen of 500,000 Years Ago

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Anthropologists said today that the fossilized human skull, believed to be of the tertiary period, discovery of which was announced in the Associated Press dispatches from Buenos Aires, last night, may be the oldest human relic ever unearthed.

If proved authentic, Dr. Franz Boas, Columbia University anthropologist and world famous scientist, asserted that it would be even older, possibly 500,000 years, than the skull of an erect man-ape, known as the pithecantropus erectus, which was found in Java 29 years ago. It may even prove, he said, to be the skull of one of earth's first men.

"This discovery, which seems almost too marvelous to be true," Dr. Boas said, "will throw light upon this hitherto unknown period. Scientists have merely speculated upon the possible existence of men in the tertiary period, although traces pointing to the existence of a man-like animal have been found in various rocks.

"The earliest man, scientists have found, dates back to around the glacial period," Dr. Boas continued. "This has not been definitely established. If it is definitely established that men existed in the tertiary period, it will upset all accepted scientific views regarding the American continents and the antiquity of man."

JOHN F. M'LARREN PASSES QUIETLY TO HIS REST

Leaves a Large Circle of Friends Who Loved Him for His Genial Kindness

The death occured Friday, February 23, at 1:30 p. m., of John F. McLarren, at his residence, 915 East Colorado street, after a long illness.

In early years Mr. McLarren was in business in Lower Argyle, Nova Scotia, later retiring and moving to Digby, Nova Scotia, where he made a wide circle of friends by his genial disposition.

Two years ago he and Mrs. McLarren moved to California for his health, but the change did not benefit him as he had hoped and the end came quietly on Friday. WHAT WAS YOUR NET INCOME FOR THIS YEAR?

By REX B. GOODCELL
Collector of Internal Revenue

Today's discussion of income tax returns will be upon deductions permitted to determine net income and at this time it might be well to state that net income is determined without taking into consideration the personal exemption to which the taxpayer may be entitled.

The personal exemption is deducted before computing the normal tax, but is never taken into consideration in determining the liability to file a return. It might be well to add that any single person must file a return whose net income is $1000 of over. Any married person living with husband or wife, if the net income is $2000 or over, and any person whose gross income is $5000 or over, must file regardless of the amount of net income.

The following is a brief outline of the deductions to which the taxpayer is entitled:

All ordinary and necessary business expenses are deductible. However, many taxpayers believe certain charges to be business expenses when they are not so considered by the Internal Revenue regulations. For instance, amounts expended for improving a taxpayer's place of business are not deductible as expense items, such as new display windows, partitions or additions to the building itself. Neither is the cost of new fixtures, automobiles, or other equipment used by the taxpayer, deductible as an expense item, the taxpayer being entitled to a depreciation allowance on equipment and improvements of this nature.

Insurance premiums paid on account of insurance of the taxpayer's merchandise and equipment are deductible. This applies to the taxpayer's business or income producing property, but does not apply to any premiums paid upon the taxpayer's life insurance policy or to insurance paid upon his personal dwelling. Crop insurance premiums paid by farmers or orchardists are deductible as necessary business expenses. However, any amount received as insurance paid on these policies must be included in gross income. Insurance premiums paid on account of the taxpayer being required to take out a policy when securing a loan are not deductible, as the Internal Revenue department holds the taxpayer to be indirectly a beneficiary under such a policy, i. e., where, under the terms of the policy the same is to be applied in satisfaction of the loan. Premiums paid on employees' insurance under the workmen's compensation, insurance and safety laws of the state of California, are permissible deductions.

Traveling expenses, including amounts expended for meals and lodging while away from home in the pursuit of a trade or business, are deductible. Commuters' fares, however, are not considered traveling expenses and are not deductible. Amounts expended traveling from the taxpayer's residence or place of business are considered personal expenses.

Membership dues and strike assessments paid by members of organized unions are permissible deductions. Expenses incurred by school teachers in attending summer schools are in the nature of personal expenses and are not deductible. Expenses incurred by railroad, stretcar conductors and motormen, in the purchase of uniforms, are held to be personal and are not permissible deductions.

Any losses sustained by taxpayer in the sale of his personal dwelling are not permissible deductions.

Incidental repairs which neither materially add to the value of the property, or appreciably prolong its life but merely keep it in an ordinary operating condition, may be deducted as business expense.

The amount paid by professional men to professional assistants and as subscriptions to professional journals are considered permissible deductions. Amounts paid to the state by doctors for admission to practice and the expenses incident thereto are considered personal expenses.

Commissions paid to real estate agents for collecting rents and management of property are considered to be business expenses and are deductible.

All interest paid or accrued within a taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred to purchase tax-free securities, are deductible. Any taxpayer purchasing a home upon the installment plan may deduct the interest paid during the year. All taxes paid or accrued are deductible, with the exception of the United States income and excess profits taxes. However, no assessments on account of local improvements are deductible as taxes. Taxpayers should record all such assessments as they are taken into consideration upon the sale of the property to which the assessment applied.

Many taxpayers believe the war tax paid when purchasing an automobile is deductible. However, this tax is not a permissible deduction by the purchaser of the automobile as the payment of the tax is imposed upon the manufacturer and not the purchaser. The only federal taxes that are imposed upon the purchaser are the admission and dues and the tax on telephone and telegraph messages. The taxpayer is permitted to deduct from his income tax return amounts paid on account of the above mentioned taxes. A record must be kept of such payments in order to determine the amount, as the Internal Revenue Bureau will not permit a deduction based on estimates.

Losses sustained by individuals during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance, or otherwise, are fully deductible if incurred in a taxpayer's trade or business, or incurred in any transaction entered into for profit or arising from fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty, or theft. They must usually be evidenced by closed and completed transactions. Any taxpayer taking a deduction under this section should attach to the return a complete statement of all the facts. This statement should contain, in the case of the sale of property, the year acquired, the cost of the property, its fair market value if acquired prior to March 1, 1913, and the amount received in case of sale. When loss is claimed through destruction of property in case of fire, flood, or other casualty, the amount deductible will be the difference between the cost of the property, less adjustment for depreciation and the salvage value thereof, taking into consideration any amount of insurance received.

Any damage to the taxpayer's machine resulting from a collision is not considered a permissible loss unless the collision occurred while the taxpayer was pursuing his trade or business.

No deductible loss is sustained due to the fluctuation of market values in property or security as long as the taxpayer retains possession of such property or securities. No deduction is allowed resulting from the sale of stocks or securities when substantially identical items are acquired within thirty days before or after such sale. A net loss of one year may be offset against the net income of succeeding years in accordance with the provisions of section 204 of the revenue act of 1921. A taxpayer sustaining a net loss such as set forth in section 204 for any taxable year ending after December 31, 1920, may file a claim therefor with his return for the subsequent taxable year. Any taxpayer desiring to take the deduction in accordance with this provision should communicate with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which he resides.

Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off in the taxable year are deductible, but any merchant reporting upon a "cash received" basis could not make any deduction on account of bad debts in connection with the sale of his merchandise as proper credit would be reflected in his reduced sales reported, the cost of merchandise, and the inventory on hand. Taxpayers reporting upon an accrual basis should always attach a statement showing how the bad debts were ascertained to be worthless. No deduction on account of bad debts can be taken where same arise from unpaid salaries, wages, rent, etc., or similar items of income, unless such items have been included in the return of income for the year in which the deduction is taken or in a previous year. No deduction as a bad debt is allowed upon worthless securities wherein the taxpayer still retains possession of such securities unless the taxpayer can show to the satisfaction of the commissioner that the financial condition of the debtor or conditions other than market fluctuation are his reasons for determining securities to be worthless.

KING JAMES I

succeeded Queen Elizabeth to the throne of England in 1603. In 1606 he gave permission to some of his subjects to conduct several colonies in America, the London Company to have the territory from the southern part of North Carolina to a point up the James River, and the Plymouth Company to have the territory from the southern part of Connecticut to the Bay of Fundy. The territory between was neutral. The distance inland was to be 100 miles.

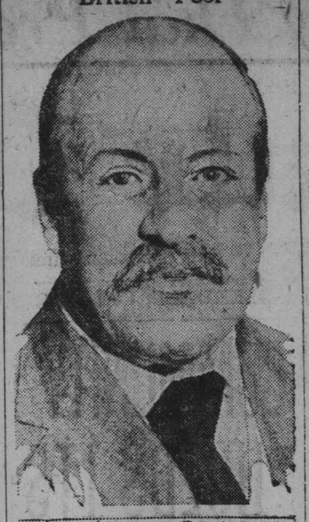
American to Become British Peer



Charles E. Pellew

Professor Charles Ernest Pellew, formerly professor of chemistry at Columbia University, New York City, a native-born American citiben, is in line for a British peerage through the death, in Washington, of his father, Henry E. Pellew, the Sixth Viscount of Exmouth, who succeeded to the title last August. The father retained his American citizenship and refused the title, which the son will accept. Professor Pellew, who was born in 1863, added, however, he would spend half his time in America.

TAPS ARE SOUNDED FOR GLENDALE VETERAN

Many Friends Pay Tribute to Memory of Aged Resident

Amid a calm that can only be found in God's great outdoors and as the soothing rays of an apparently undestanding and sympathetic sun filtered gently through the trees and shrubbery of Forest Lawn cemetery, the last rites were spoken over the body of George Cornwell, a much-loved resident of Glendale.

Gathered around the little spot where Mr. Cornwell was gently laid to rest, were the members of his family, a number of his Grand Army comrades—men who many years ago stood shoulder to shoulder with their departed brother, and a large company of friends, who, in his lifetime, had known and loved the one who a few days ago was called "home."

The Grand Army service was read at the grave. Comrades Barrett, Rev. C. R. Norton, Robert Taylor and others assisted in the service. J. B. Clark led in the singing of "Rock of Ages."

One by one the steps in the service were taken, one by one the aged veterans with tear-dimmed eyes performed their parts in the service which was to take from their sight one of their dearly-beloved comrades.

Taps were sounded by Robert Searles, and those gathered dispersed slowly, wending their ways to their various homes. Prior services, starting at 2 o'clock, were held at the parlors of the Jewel City Undertaking company, which was filled with those wishing to pay tribute to their departed friend. The part of the room which contained the casket was a bank of floral pieces, expressions of love from friends and from the various members of the Cornwell family.

The service was opened by song, "Crossing the Bar," sung by J. B. Clarke. This was followed by a scripthre reading by Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the Glendale Christian church, who a moment later offered prayer. Mr. Clark then sang, "Home of the Soul."

Rev. C. R. Norton, who has been a resident of Glendale for many years, and during that time was one of the closest friends of Mr. Cornwell, followed with a message of love regarding his departed comrade.

"Comrade Cornwell," he said, "has received his commission. He has been told to 'come up higher.' This summons does not mean punishment, but advancement.

"Death is not a punishment of sin, otherwise the Godly, such as our comrade here, would not die. Even the little children are taken from us. It is an advancement, a call to take a higher position—an upward step.

"The death summons that have been answered by this brother are the words to enter into another sphere—to pass through the gateway into a life that is everlasting. It is a path along which we all must go sometime, somehow, somewhere. He has been called to enter the ranks beyond Jordan, where God tells us He will wipe all tears from our eyes.

"Often, how often have I prayed with our departed brother, and just as often have I seen those honest tears run down his cheeks, and have heard his sincere 'Amen.' I have known his beloved wife for years and years. I have known practically the entire family, and I have nothing but the highest regard for every member.

"One of the sweetest things I have ever known is the devotion to their ailing father of the various members of the family. Too often when the father and mother grow old they become in the way, but not so with this family. Every minute, every hour, they were ready and anxious to assist and administer to the needs of their loved one. The acts of the family members in this regard should be enough to immortalize them in the eyes of this entire community."

Following the address by Rev. Norton, friends and relatives passed by the casket. The pallbearers, Comrades John Goetz, Harry Stevenson, P. S. Quick, W. H. Reynolds, Lew Wardell and G. W. Reed then carried the body to the hearse and the funeral cortege moved slowly to Forest Lawn.

George Cornwell was a resident of Glendale for over thirty years, most of which time was spent at 135 North Kenwood street, where he had lived for over twenty-six years. Mr. Cornwell was born June 1, 1839, in Tennessee, moving to Arkansas when he was fourteen years of age. He enlisted in Company A, First Arkansas Cavalry, in 1862, and served until the close of the war.

Mr. Cornwell was married on September 1, 1868, to Mary Elizabeth Riggins. He is survived by his widow, eight children, including Jennie Cornwell, Carrie Cornwell, Mae Cornwell; Hugh Cornwell and Albert Cornwell of Glendale; Mrs. A. P. Stone of Deniar, Calif.; Edward and Curtis Cornwell of Modesto, Calif., and sixteen grand children, including Mrs. Daniel Kelty, Jr., Dr. Fay G. Stone, Elizabeth Glenn and Philip Cornwell of Glendale, the rest living in the north part of the state. He is also survived by nine great grandchildren. The children residing outside of Glendale were all present at the funeral.

For the past five years Mr. Cornwell has been in poor health. He was a member of N. P. Banks post.

Make a remedy worse than the disease and most people will take it.

REV. W. E. EDMONDS FINDS TEXT IN MARK

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning Rev. W. E. Edmonds stirred the hearts of his congregation with a powerful sermon based on the words of Jesus Christ, as recorded in the 11th chapter of Mark: "I say unto you, that whosoever shall say unto this mountain, be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith. Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them. And when ye stand praying, forgive."

There are those who, perhaps not in words but more definitely in their acts, who would seem to lay claim to being experts in matters of intercession, have to admit, either willingly or unwillingly, problems in prayer. There is help in recognizing that the basic principle in all prayer is the fact that we are God's children through faith in Jesus Christ. As believers, we should be content living in the center of His will, looking always for His hand and for the revelation of His purpose.

Philosophical minds reason against the Christian doctrine of prayer on the ground that all things move according to the fixed natural laws and that even the Supreme Being does not interfere because those laws are of His own appointment, and obedience to them is encouraged. Great business organizations alter their fixed schedules whenever sufficient reason justifies. Railroad train schedules are never so ironclad but what they can be changed to meet unusual conditions. So while God established certain uniform laws in the natural world, as the Supreme lawgiver and executive, He may interpose and intervene and send His special along lines of Divine Providence. It is His right to rule and overrule in behalf of the children of His love. God's laws are inexorable.

Are you discouraged because you feel that certain moral laws must inevitably take their course regardless of prayer? "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." If the seed is sin, misery and disease is planted, the result is suffering. God is not going to work a miracle in transforming a harvest of thorns into a blessing. However, here also human experience and God's sovereign plan and purpose must be reckoned with. There is nothing impossible with God, and He rules in every realm of life. You can't stop His program with your criticisms, or your likes or dislikes. Young Augustine, in answer to his mother's prayers, after a wasted youth in sinful indulgences that all but wrecked his life, was not only pardoned and saved and spiritually transformed, but God gave him strength in the newness of life to enjoy more than the alloted three score years and ten.

The next point I bring to you is prayer and the spiritual life of the believer. I am convinced that we need to remind ourselves these days that the whole prayer program of life has a dual relationship. It is not only a relationship toward God, but a relationship toward man. They are equally important. While God does not hear us because of our personal merits or superior sanctity, there are moral and spiritual conditions that practically affect the whole program of prayer. Lack of harmony in the Christian home is a great hindrance to a life of victory in prayer. There must be not only harmony with Jesus Christ but with our fellowmen. An unforgiving spirit is a great "bloc" in the prayer life. "When ye stand praying, forgive." Dr. Dixon says, "When you pray, stop and think." Think whether or not you are in harmony with God. Are you willing to have His will worked out even to the smashing of your own plans and purposes which to you may seem right? Are you willing to do that which might seem to be wrong in order to be free to do that which God may judge to be right, and He can only reveal it when you stand before Him with an open mind. Have you an unforgiving spirit toward anybody: if so, it must be brought under the Blood, and have God touch it and sweep it away before you go any farther in the prayer life.

Harmony with God and a forgiving spirit toward everybody are necessary to successful praying. We have all been wronged. Man's inhumanity to man makes many thousands mourn. In all the world no man suffered such injustice as Jesus Christ. He was misunderstood on every hand, even by some of His own disciples. You have never stood so alone as He. He was scourged, rejected, put to an ignominous death. How small are our wrongs in the light of His? Do we resent the wrongs done us; do we propose to exact the last farthing? Oh, this paying back men in their own coin. And this among some Christians, believers who have been purchased with His precious blood. How often are we to forgive our brother? Jesus Christ said "Seventy times seven" —times without number. "When ye stand praying, forgive." What then shall be our attitude? This is the very heart of the gospel of reconciliation. Forgive as we forgive? No, Lord, help us to forgive as Christ forgave. Help us to be humiliated as He was humiliated, that our prayers may be answered. Let us have God's grace in our hearts, pouring itself out without stint. It is human to err, divine to forgive. This is the royal road to a victorious prayer life. All this towers far above natural law or moral law. This is the law of heaven brought down to earth. A true Christian speaketh in this wise: "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Parliamentary Law Class Has Meeting

The Parliamentary Law Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club held a meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. M. Brown, 309 North Brand, where a drill was conducted by Mrs. Verity on opening a meeting, making motions and amendments, the appointment of speiial committees and the reports of committees. The section also discussed the raising of money to pay the glassware it has undertaken to furnish for the home of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. It is probable that the section will give a musical in the auditorium of the Harrower laboratory at which a silver offering will be taken. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Brandstater, curator of the section.

PENSION GRANTED MRS. MAGGIE CASE AFTER 13 YEARS

George W. Case, Civil war veteran, died in 1910, at the then home of the family on Lomita avenue, just east of Central, on the lot now occupied by H. A. Harrison's beautiful home. Application for a widow's pension was filed by Mrs. Maggie L. Case, relict of the deceased veteran. Today, after 13 years, the pension is assured, according to a telegram from Congressman Walter F. Lineberger, who had given it his personal attention. Edgar Hemsworth was Mrs. Case's attorney in the final effort to obtain her rights from a dilatory congress. Mrs. Case recently moved into a comfortable home at 1154 Sonora, provided by her son Vern, with whom she lived for ten years at 462 West Colorado. She is almost helpless, having been afflicted for many years with varicose veins.

E. R. Best, who sold his home at 1317 South Central, recently, and bought at 605 West Lexington drive, has gone into business, having bought E. C. Smith's bakery and lunch business at 1257 South Brand. Mr. and Mrs. Best and their daughter Helen have been residents of Glendale and old Tropico for many years and are known to nearly every one in South Glendale.

WINCHESTER TO HAVE SIDEWALKS

A petition was received by the city council Monday night from the property owners on Winchester, from Glenwood road to Kenneth road, asking that proceedings be started for the improvement of that road with sidewalks 5-feet in width to be assessed to abutting property. These proceedings were ordered.

Map of Tract No. 6050 was accepted.

Various sized demands presented by the city manager were allowed and warrants were drawn.

It was decided to inform the property owners along Central avenue that if they want their street improved they will have to bring in a petition asking for same.

A request was made by John Martin and Ann and Mary Austin to erect a tent for the practice of palmistry at 113 South Central. This request was denied.

A refund was ordered to G. B. Woodberry for taxes erroneously paid by him.

Truths in Epigram

There is no one who takes such good care of the pennies as the man who does not need them. — W. A. Taylor.

The willow that bends to the tempest often escapes better than the oak which resists it.—Dickens.

Next to knowing how to seize an opportunity, the most important thing is to know when to force an advantage.—Beaconsfield.

TROTZKY'S WAR NOTE

According to Trotzky, war has become a necessity for Russia. That country, he declares, must bend all its energies to the production of war material. This is an intimation that the country still possesses energies, but not an explanation of why these have not been bent towards some useful activity. For example, the raising of crops so as to obviate the demand for charity, would have been considered worth while by a different brand of statesman.

It is fair to Trotzky to say that the information concerning his present humor comes from a news service not always reliable. The service in question accepts the theory that Germany is all right, and any nation not promoting the German purpose is all wrong. It is ready to applaud any act that may be construed as hostile to the French. It would delight to see Russian bolshevists and German soldiers of whatever class, fighting together for the conquering of Europe.

It is not clear how a Russian army, fed at home on loot, could get away from its base and serve as a fighting unit. More natural to suppose that it would degenerate into a marauding horde, and soon into a starving horde, helpless as a stray band of sheep. Were it to make an alliance with any German faction, it might not be making friends of that faction, but in the end would be under Teutonic domination. And the Germans, harried and anxious, still have too much sense to set up in their own country such a regime of ruin as has been the lot of Russia.

Germany is held helpless by the French. Were Trotzky re-enforcements to sweep down over Europe, the French would not be alone. All of Europe would be with them. Europe may not like France with special warmth just now, but it knows that France could not be destroyed and the other powers escape. Therefore even granting that a Russian army might interfere with Poland, and thence spread over Europe, it could not have its own way undisputed. Indeed, its rashness might for all time destroy the malign machine built up by Trotzky and his co-conspirators.

FADING FROM MEMORY

Memory is short because human life is short. The impression in the mind of one generation is but imperfectly passed along to the next. Thus the reputations of men who were not of such magnitude as to be more than minor, though perhaps spectacular figures in the making of history, fade from mortal ken. This thought was suggested by a headline reading thus: "Mrs. Logan, Widow Civil War Vet, Dead."

John A. Logan was a union general in the Civil war. He had had no previous military training, but rose to command of the army of the Tennessee. After the war for years he represented Illinois in the senate. One of his titles was "Black Eagle of Illinois." There was in his veins a trace of Indian blood. He was deeply swarthy, with high cheek bones, by complexion and profile showing the tribal kinship. Of this he was proud. His picture became familiar when accounts of the war began to be published. Later it was frequently to be seen in newspapers. Logan was a power in the republican party.

In 1884 the republican presidential ticket was Blaine and Logan. Against them Cleveland and Hendricks stood for the democrats. There was a spirited campaign. The four candidates became as well known as public duty had made the leaders of the war. Logan had been mentioned as a presidential possibility. Many felt that his presence on the ticket would draw such strength as Blaine might lack, and Blaine was regarded as a strong candidate. Throughout the republican area, the defeat of the favorite two came as an astonishing and almost revolutionary shock.

All that was not so very long ago, yet Logan, mentioned in a paragraph, because of the death of his aged widow, is thrust into the role of "Civil War Vet."

Henry Ford says that history is bunk. This may be the reason that youth dodges it so assidiously.

THEY'LL GET BY ALL RIGHT

One-third of the girl, and women students at the branch of the state university at Los Angeles are working their way through, and intend to go all the distance. It has been found that eighty of the coeds not only are doing this, but earning their living unassisted. These statistics ought to throw considerable light upon the composite character of the student body. It is taken for granted that a large proportion of male students have to earn their education by some form of toil. That the same is true of the other sex will be regarded as news. When girls want a college course so much that they are ready for a hard struggle to get the necessary funds, there is no doubt of their serious purpose, nor that they will get by all right, not only at school but later.

A few days ago a college professor declared that 70 per cent of the students ought to drop their books and take up the pick handle or the frying pan. This paper took issue with him at the time, believing that he spoke from prejudice perhaps due to some personal trait. One of the students might have asked the professor if, having dropped his books for the implements suggested, he would have been a professor, or something better, but nobody asked him. Doubtless a few lazy students are enrolled, partly because by this course they are following the line of least resistance, but it is fair to admit that the evidence favors the theory that the great majority are in the classroom to learn, and to prepare themselves for useful careers. Otherwise they would not work so hard to enter and to stay.

Dumb waiters carry everything but gossip.

THE END OF PRETENSE

The pretender to the throne of Portugal died the other day in New York. So far as recorded it was about the only act of his career that was not pretense. He caught double pneumonia, and passed away quite sincerely. Perhaps the pretending claimant was not to blame for his worthlessness. Brought up in the belief that the throne was his by rights, and being the pet of royal circles, he became a rather romantic figure. He married an American girl who should have known better. Her contribution to the family strong box was $2,000,000. The pretender picked the lock of the box and the millions flew away. The king of Austria—there was a king there then who could do such things—made the bride a princess, and paid the groom's new debts, this not helping matters much. When the kaiser decided to whip the world, the pretender approved, and went through the war as a German soldier, getting considerable kick out of the experience. In 1919 he came to the United States, bringing his pretenses with him. Latterly they had been of little use save as a social asset. It is probable that his surroundings were not all congenial, yet the native weakness of the man caused his shortcomings to be overlooked. Besides, he remained to the end a romantic figure, having discovered this to be his best role.

Never before had the practise of counterfeiting been carried on by a system so vast as that which has just been exposed. Hundreds of people of many nationalities are involved. They had offices and agents in many large cities here and abroad. They issued not only bogus money, but stamps and labels. The law fixes forty-five years as the maximum imprisonment for counterfeiting. An effort to evoke the maximum is planned by the authorities.

All the world loves to laugh with a laugher.

GLOOM LITERATURE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The other day an eighteen-year-old Barnard College junior, a girl physically perfect and handsome, committed suicide by drinking potassium cyanide.

She announced that her reason for this rash act was to be found in her reading of a book whose pessimism, gloom, cowardice, and perverted egotism had so preyed upon her mind that her life did not seem worth while.

The book was called "The Journal of a Disappointed Man." It was a chronicle of the thoughts of a lad of fourteen carried through to young manhood, and contained a record of disillusionment and failure. He died at the age of twenty-eight.

This young lady was not a failure judging by all outward standards. She had achieved honors in economics, sociology, zoology, and anthropology. She had plenty of funds and many friends.

All this furnishes a striking illustration of the harm the gloom spreader can do.

We have a way of calling tragic books strong and refer to plays and novels as "strong" when they record a succession of moral gripes. It seems to be a common notion that tragedy is superior to comedy, more thoughtful, more worth while. All this, in my opinion, is nonsense.

Joy is infinitely more complex, adventurous, and interesting than sorrow. It is harder to understand. Further than that, it takes a strong personality to endure it.

Any weakling can suffer, any pusillanimous soul can whine.

Almost any young authors in their first works write some sort of gloomy stuff. It is the easiest thing in the world to write, for the simple reason that a howl of pain attracts more attention than a smile.

As far as I am concerned I am glad that I have never lent my pen to any such noxious produce, for I think if one cannot say something that shall contribute to the health, the courage, or the contentment of his fellow men, he had infinitely better not write at all.

I not only do not write gloom stuff, but I never read it if I can help it. Nature has supplied me with all the gloom I need and I do not need the assistance of art.

I persist in my belief that no artist has any right to make any work that is not beautiful, and more generally speaking, no human being has a right to say or do anything that can encourage the fears, the morbidity or the despair of the world.

The gentleman who wrote this book which occasioned the suicide of the lady, died shortly after he wrote it. His mistake was that he did not die before he wrote the book.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE INTERROGATION POINT

When to Use a "?"

At the end of a sentence that is in the form of a question, providing that the sentence is not an exclamation; as, What did he say? Note: When a question is a real exclamation, an exclamation point (!) should be used; as, When I turned the corner and found him standing in front of a large window, a huge rock in his hand, in consternation I shouted, "What are you going to do!"

After a word or group of words that asks a question; as, What? You would? In the yard? How much? And after the discussion is over?

At the end of a direct quotation that asks a question, the interrogation point being placed inside the last quotation mark; as, I then asked, "Where is this man?" Note: A period at the end of the foregoing sentence is unnecessary.

At the end of a sentence and outside the last quotation mark when the whole sentence asks a question and the direct quotation is in itself not a question, but just a plain assertion; as, How dare you say, "I can't"?

At the end of a question that is a direction quotation, and which is a part of, and at the end of, another question (the "?" being at the end of the quoted question, the final "?" being omitted since it is easily understood); as, Why do you continue to ask, "Are you feeling well?"

At the end of a direct quotation in the form of a question when that quotation is in the middle of a sentence; as, I asked, "How did you succeed?" but I got no reply."

Note: When a question is quoted within another quotation, it should be followed by a "?" placed just inside the quotation mark; as, Mr. Cogswell said to me today, "I wonder why he keeps on asking, 'When shall we finish the work?'" A final period is unnecessary.

The "?" in the form (?) is used after an expression on which the writer wishes to cast doubt or uncertainty; as, Tactfully (?) he broached the question.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

There are many short words that are expressive far beyond their length or mellifluousness.

They have significance and snap to them.

JAMES W. FOLEY

Embodying a lot.
Multum in parvo.
Much in little.

* * *

Language was perhaps originally made of short sounds.

Single syllables.

For language did not always exist as it is now in its finished state.

It was composed perhaps of a few sounds.

Made to cover all necessary meanings.

* * *

For in the origin of man not many meanings were necessary to express.

For original man was primitive.

He had hunger.
Greed.
Love.
Fear.
He was hot.
He was cold.
He was wet.

* * *

He had little of academic need for expression.

He did not measure the stars or plumb the seas or put a girdle about the earth in forty seconds.

He did not make orations as did Cicero.

He did not engage in astronomical speculations as did Copernicus or Galileo.

* * *

He did not sail unknown seas as Columbus.
Nor had he the poetry of Homer.
The sculpture of Phidias.
The muse of Sappho.
The artistry of Michael Angelo.
The logic of Bacon.
The dramatic instinct of Shakespeare.

* * *

So, with only primitive impulse and feelings to convey, he needed few words.

His language was short and simple like the annals of the poor.

A few grunts and squeals and shouts and that sufficed him.

Until he began to enlarge his vision.
Engage in speculation.
Travel the seas.
Begin commerce.

* * *

But to get back to the short word we have in mind.

One of the most expressive in our language.

A word with a punch to it, as they say in the street.

Something to stir the pulses and arouse the energies and make the world step along.

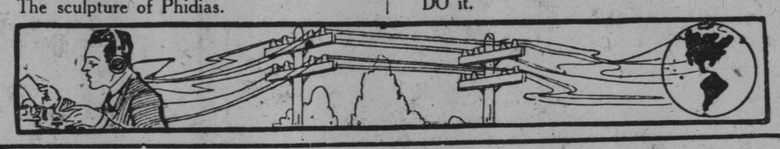
* * *

DO.
That is it.
A signal for action.
A command to stand and deliver work.
A word for the man of action.

For the preacher and the poet and the builder and the farmer and the smith and the workman of whatever kind.

* * *

DO the job.
Get it done.
Learn something.
Build something.
Make something.
Be a man of action.
Get the spirit of that word into your mind.
The day's work.
DO it.



Songs of the Poets

The Grass—By Charles Hanson Towne

Sometimes when I have suffered, I have dipped
Into this great green gospel opened wide,
And read the tale that no one has denied—
That God is good. With honey life has dripped
When I the ancient knowledge drank and sipped,
Finding new meanings on the page's side,
Fresh wonder where the sweet inscriptions glide
Through the illuminated manuscript.
Enchanting story! How the record runs
Through the vast world upon each scented page,
With marginal designs and glossaries,
Footnotes and flowery borders, and the sun's
Eternal illustration! Youth and Age
Alike can read such magic words as these.

JUST A LITTLE LAUGH

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

One of those national pests who believes it unwise, always, to punish anybody has just burst into prints for the 'nth time to protest the unwisdom of putting speeders in jail, the general idea being, I presume, that endangering the lives of many people is less reprehensible than curtailing the liberty of the lunatics back of high priced steering wheels.

Be that as it may, a few of the rules handed down by the Japanese police for the guidance of autoists in the Flowery Kingdom might with profit be naturalized and taken over by our police departments. The picturesque phrasing will serve to fix the attention. For example:

"When a passenger of the foot hove in sight tootle the horn; trumpet to him melodiously at the first, but if he still obstacles your passage, tootle him with vigor."

Does not that reach a soft spot in innumerable hearts that have longed with a great yearning to be "tootled to harmoniously at the first" in order that they might be given a chance to speed up without jumping out of their right and lawful pelts?

And this, how soothing, how suggestive of diplomacy applied to quadrupeds:

"Beware the wandering horse that he shall not take fright as you pass him by. Do not explode an exhaust box at him. Go soothingly by."

"Go soothingly by"—that's it; also "Go soothingly to the grease-mud as there lurks the skid demon."

Is it not a joy to get that special demon located?

Observe the neat rules for dealing with canines who have not been posted on the auto and its destructive ways:

"Give big space to the festive dog that shall sport in the roadway.

"Avoid entanglement of dog with your wheel spokes."

In this speed ridden land we are more likely to run over casual and unnimble dogs than we are to give free space to their sporting proclivities; and, as for getting an animal entangled in the wheel spokes, we are likely to figure that in such an eventuality the animal will suffer more than the wheel.

There are more rules, but I promised you a laugh and I have delivered it.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TRUTH BEATS FICTION

[New York Evening Mail]

An Oklahoma man, part Cherokee Indian, having spent 22 years in jail for a murder he did not commit, has been released to find himself almost a millionaire. His release came when one of the chief witnesses against him admitted that her own husband had committed the crime.

There is plenty of material for the dramatist in this story. The woman side of it alone would make a great play. The innocent victim's psychology would provide many interesting situations. Taken together, they would provide all the "meat" any writer needs. But they are not so far novel.

There is, however, one element in this story which does not usually appear. It is the manner in which the community is making amends for its failure to see justice done in the first instance. We do not refer to any spiritual growth the innocent man may have in jail. But all the time he was there the community, without knowing it, was building up the value of his property. The demand for oil has made his land valuable without any help from him. Justice can not always retrieve her steps, but she sometimes makes a remarkably good attempt to do so, notwithstanding her blindness and the blindness of her devotees.

DR. BUTLER'S CONCLUSIONS

[Lowell Courier-Citizen]

There will be outcry from the hosts of the children of light upon reading the statement of Nicholas Murray Butler that he sees not the slighest chance for the efficient enforcement of prohibition as at present attempted—despite the fact that the statement is eminently sensibl eand indisputably true, so far as one may judge by present experiences and past history. In this case no fanatic wants the truth, or will listen to it for one instant. Ephraim is joined to his idols and cannot be pried away from them.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It's all right for Los Angeles to crow occasionally. When its chamber of commerce has one of its annual blowouts, there is a chorus of crowing that is bound to attract attention. The chamber is the largest body of the kind in the United States. It had to get that way to keep its proper ratio to the population of the city.

HENRY JAMES.

The reason that there is no protest to be made against the tendency to crow is that there is so much to crow about. Why, they are getting so close to a million people over there that they expect to round out the number before the end of 1923. Los Angeles has attained to fifth place among cities, and yet it was only tenth as recently as 1920. That's growing some, the chamber of commerce states frankly.

The growth of Los Angeles is hailed by the whole of southern California, not through love of the big place exactly, but because it typifies the energy and the potency of this end of the state. As Los Angeles flourishes, so does the whole community about it. That metropolis is in a position to make the most noise. It has the barkers and it pays the band, but it isn't the whole show.

Chief Justice Wilbur makes what seems to be an excellent suggestion touching proposed changes in criminal court procedure. He favors the finding of a verdict by a majority of the jury. In capital cases he would permit the death penalty only when the jury was unanimous.

This appears to get around a difficulty that had been quite generally recognized by proponents of the new plan.

There is no particular force in terming film studios "canneries." The reproach in "canned," used in this manner, fled quite away with the success of the phonograph.

"Canned" may be employed in an invidious sense and with a meaning wholly different. It is slang for "bounced" and for "fired," these being slang for "discharged."

A Long Beach man says he was approached by a stranger who offered him $35,000 to kill somebody. He explains that the stranger was wearing several diamond rings and a diamond stickpin, and gave "every evidence of culture."

This raises a query as to what may be regarded as culture. A display of diamonds in public is far from being a sure sign. Even the proffer of a large sum in promotion of murder is not acceptable evidence.

New York, largely foreign, but on American territory, was the scene of a mass meeting called for denouncing the conduct of France in entering the Ruhr region. Proceedings were animated but not violent. Occasionally a speaker would venture the opinion that Germany ought to pay its just debts. This would cause an outcry in favor of throwing the speaker out, but he never was thrown out.

The French over in the Ruhr seem not to have heard of the meeting yet.

Only a few months ago one Ponzi, type of the pyrotechnic financier, who had been dealing in the money of suckers, was caught and sent to prison. Now the authorities are looking for an ex-barber who has imitated Ponzi to the extent of swindling hopeful investors of a million.

Somehow, while "capital is timid" proverbially, and often even an abject coward, the small capitalist never learns that confidence operators are many and cunning, and take money for the single purpose of keeping it. Their games generally would seem to anybody who studied them, to have been conceived in stupidity, but not so. They are conceived shrewdly, but with a realization that the patron will supply the equation of stupidity without which the schemes never could be worked.

The man who buys a gold brick does not exhibit a more childlike faith, than the one who buys stocks on the promise of unprecedented dividends.

So many deaths have occurred from the form of poisoning known as botulinus, due to a fungus growth, that the matter becomes one of serious concern. Science knows that the poison is found in canned vegetables that have not been properly heated, and that heat will destroy the power of the germ from which the poison emanates.

Warnings are issued against the use of canned foods that are even suspected of lacking absolute freshness.

The victim of botulism may recover, but generally does not.

Many students of the problem of drug addiction have reached the conclusion that the traffic may be stopped only through international agreement and concerted action. They make out a very good case in support of the theory. However, difficulties appear.

There are some peoples, reckoned civilized, who do not seem to object to the traffic if only it be carried on at a distance. They are quite ready to furnish the raw material for the spread of ruin, and accept the consequent profits.

Then there is to be considered such Americans as hold that any agreement with another nation for any purpose, would be one of the entangling alliances supposed to have been feared by George Washington.

Meanwhile the discussion goes on, the interest increases, and doubtless something drastic and effective will be done.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This is neither pretty nor wise to say, but I'll always believe that every boy should take a short course in draw poker before he launches his bark. Not the sort of poker one plays around home with mother looking on. In that game the man who loses four dollars loses his reputation right along with it. And if the Bright Heir gets as much as ninety cents ahead at any period mother pulls his elbow.

"Why don't you quit, Roy?" she says. "You're ahead."

The kind of poker boys need to fit them for life is the sort that is played seven hundred miles away from home in a strange town and with all the wires down in the winter's heavy snow. That sort of poker is played with meditation and prayer. It teaches the player more about the science of face reading, patience, and memory, past history and probable characteristics than two ferms in a fine old moss-grown private school. If you win you have merely acquired the duty of defending the winnings at the next game. If you lose you may have to try to borrow money on your spare suit.

All this is because Jimmy Davis over-played his hand the other day. Jimmy has all there are of the more austere virtues. He never slept a night away from home, he never squandered the tenth part of a buffalo nickel, he never lied or stole or drank. He never had any but the more improving ideas. He tried to start a campaign to clean up the town's worst streets.

"We'll make a park down there and widen the streets," he said. "Why, do you know that those poor little kids——"

He told me some of the saddest stories I ever heard about those poor little kids. They were so sad that I told them to Mrs. Pilgrim and she, good soul, organized a sorority or something to feed and help and save. She found out that those stories were not true and came back on me.

I found out that Jimmy Davis wanted to sell to the city the land for a park.

But if he had not over-played his hand he would have gotten away with it.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Only about 1 per cent of the light produced in the motion picture projector actually reaches the screen.

If one pound of hydrogen, which could be bought for one cent, could be turned into helium, it would give enough energy to heat a house of seven rooms for 1000 years.

It is estimated that there are now in Australia thirty billion rabbits all descended from a few pairs of cottentails brought from America about 70 years ago.

About 43 per cent of traffic accidents occur at night, although there is less traffic at night than in the day.

BEAUTIFUL LOTS COVERED WITH TREES—HIGHLY RESTRICTED

The restrictions are $3000 and $3500, and no temporary homes are permitted. The location is ideal, being above Kenneth Road, below Tenth Street, which is a main paved boulevard between Glendale and Burbank. It is one of the best locations in the rapidly developing Northwest section, commanding an unsurpassed panoramic view of the whole valley. Water, gas and electricity paid.

NO TEMPORARY HOMES

All through the sale of our subdivision FAIRVIEW we have had hundreds of calls for lots with trees on them, and also for lots on which temporary homes were not permitted. At last we are able to supply this demand, and at prices so low that there will undoubtedly be, in a very short time, remarkable increases in values in SUNSET GROVE.

FOR INVESTORS

The terms, $100 cash and $20 and $25 per month, affords an opportunity to purchase a lot in a beautiful tract at the low opening prices, with a very small cash investment.

We estimate that there has been $150,000 of increase in values in our FAIRVIEW subdivision over our opening prices, and we anticipate that the ratio of increase in SUNSET GROVE will be even more.

It has been consistently our rule to offer lots at a low price, with the idea that we desire our purchasers to make as much money as we do, and our experience in FAIRVIEW has fully justified this position.

BUY A LOT AT OPENING PRICES

SUNSET GROVE will appeal to people who desire a more exclusive district, and to those who appreciate the great desirability of property in the beautiful Northwest section of Glendale, where development, improvements, increase of population are going ahead with tremendous strides.

SUNSET GROVE lots are selling very fast. Over $15,000 worth of property sold first three days of sale. Don't delay. Come and see this new subdivision.

Drive out Kenneth Road, Grandview Avenue and Tenth Street direct to Tract Office on South side of Tenth Street, beyond Linden Ave. Tract office open all day Sunday. On Saturday afternoon call at our office on Broadway.

The Once Over

REAL FACTS ABOUT KING TUT-ANKH-AMEN AND TOMB EXPOSED AT LAST; NOTED INVESTIGATOR BARES THE TRUTH

(Being a letter from Dablin Crymes, the great detective and investigator, assigned by this department to go to Egypt and ascertain the truth about King Tut-Ankh-Amen.)

Dear Sir:

My mission has been successful. The truth about King Tut-Ankh-Amen may now be stated to the world. The king is coming to the United States for indefinite vaudeville tour.

* * *

He is not dead. On the contrary, he is alive and in remarkably good condition for one who has been through so much publicity. His real name, I am in a position to state, is Tobias McSniff, originally of Troy, N. Y., and he knows nothing about all this Egyptian king business except that an American showman, Guthrie Forepaugh, has been over here stuffing the tomb for over a year, and that he was well paid to wrap himself up in twelve yards of cheese cloth and lie in a cool, dry place until called for.

* * *

Forepaugh has been buying junk from curio shops all over the world. The dazzling couches taken out last week were bought from the Geraldine Farrar auction. The chariot poles and wheels were leased from the fourth road company of "Ben-Hur."

Forepaugh finished furnishing and stuffing the tomb about three months ago. McSniff was the last thing put in it. After wrapping him up like a sore thumb, sprinkling him with nutmeg gratings like a custard pie, and inserting a few raisins in his ears, Forepaugh got him stewed on synthetic gin and then sealed the tomb. He then sent an anonymous letter to the explorers telling them that the spot marked X showed where the body was last seen.

Meantime he had sent word to all the newspaper writers and camera men. When the tomb was opened McSniff was just sobering up, and Forepaugh had to keep sneaking in and giving him more gin to keep him quiet. Yesterday, however, McSniff turned over on his stomach, and this excited the suspicions of visiting Egyptologists.

I called his bluff last evening and had quite an interview with him. He has reached a point where he really believes he is King Tut-Ankh-Amen.

"Are you King Tut-Ankh-Amen?" I asked.

"Positively," he replied, sitting up in the box. "Here's my card!"

"Have you been asleep 3,000 years?" I asked.

"It seemed longer than that," he returned, rubbing his eyes.

"What's the idea?" we asked.

"My doctor advised it," replied Tut-Ankh-Amen. "He said I couldn't expect to feel right if I didn't get plenty of good, sound sleep."

"You feel well rested?"

"Like a new man. Yes, indeedy. There's nothing like plenty of rest."

* * *

King Tut-Ankh-Amen threw his legs over the side of the box, sat up, and looked about him.

* * *

"What time is it?" he suddenly asked.

"What difference does it make?" we fired back at him.

"Nothing," he replied; "only I just remember I had an appointment with my dentist for 3:45 P. M., year 234 B. C."

"You'll never make it," we warned him.

"Too bad!" he replied. "I should have set the alarm."

"Weren't you bored lying here all these years?"

"I'm never bored when I'm lying," he assured.

"What are your plans for the future?"

"Well, I've waited a long time for my big chance. It has come at last. I have been offered forty weeks in American vaudeville and have decided to accept."

"What will your act consist of?"

"Don't be silly," he replied. "You don't need an act to get by in American vaudeville. All you need is publicity. Do you doubt that I have got plenty of that?"

"Not for a minute," we replied.

"See you in New York," he concluded, scrambling back into his box. "Here comes a couple of skeptics."

I had neared the exit when he shouted: "By the way, did they ever find out who hit Billy Patterson?"

I will write more details later. Please send me more expense money. Sincerely,
DABLIN CRYMES.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

IT IS not always from the great and successful alone that we hear words of eternal truth. The story is told of an obscure young man who, upon finishing college, obtained an engineering position with a railroad in Northern Canada. An accident caused his death, and among his effects was found a carefully prepared plan of life. Owing to limited space, quotation of the full text of the young man's manuscript cannot be made here, but the following sentences carry a lesson of such value that they should be given wide dissemination.

S. W. STRAUS

"To believe that success lies within myself, in my own brain, my own ambition, my own courage and determination. To expect difficulties and to force my way through them; to turn hard experience into capital for future struggles."

And then at another place one finds the following:

"To keep my future unmortgaged with debts, to save as well as earn. To cut out expensive amusements until I can afford them. To steer clear of dissipation and guard my health of body and peace of mind as a most precious stock in trade."

It would be well if every young man could map out such a sensible plan of conduct and adhere to it unswervingly. There could be no failure where such a creed prevailed. Self-reliance, courage, determination, economy of money and health, and self-respect.

These are the qualities any young man must have if he accomplishes real success.

And, when we analyze them, we find they comprise the embodiment of true constructive thrift.

YANKS MAY WIN THIS YEAR, SAYS FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—After the New York Yankees had blown the last world's series and made one of the sorriest showings a champion ball club ever made in a title series, "Cap" Huston, part owner of the team, gave the boys a regular army "talking to."

He knew the way to a ball player's heart and in an appeal for them to come back and hustle in the 1923 pennant race, he mentioned that they would be playing in a new stadium that could accommodate 65,000.

"Your end of the world's series money next year will be about $10,000 each, if you get into the series," he said.

This new stadium will be a big factor in the next pennant race. With the execption of one more veteran southpaw pitcher, the Yanks probably will start the season with the same personnel, but it should not be the same team.

The White Sox of 1923 will be an improved ball team and so will the Detroit Tigers. Both are dangerous teams, but the Yanks, with some hustle in them, should win the pennant.

If the temptation of that $10,000 does not speed them up, the Colonels had better get out the wrecking crew.

* * *

Despite belief to the contrary, the new stadium should not curb the hitting of Babe Ruth. It isn't reasonable to figure that the owners of the Yanks would spend two million dollars to hurt their biggest asset. It doesn't follow that the new Yankee stadium was built for Ruth, however. The right field foul line is about ten feet shorter than the Polo grounds, but the right field stands in the new stadium do not cut in as sharply as they do at the Giants' home. Many American League sluggers who dropped pop fly homers into the stands at the Polo grounds will not get so many next year, but Ruth will get them, because the majority of the drives he made when he was going good were high up into the upper stands and would have been homers on any field.

FOR THE CHAISE LONGUE

For one's hours of ease a chaise longue and cover are absolutely necessary. And when the cover is made of pale pink satin and embroidered in pink and gray green there is nothing more to be desired. The cover is accompanied by a pillow of the same material.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE WAY HE USED TO DO

Sometimes when I come in at night
And take my shoes off at the stair,
I hear my pop turn on the light
And holler: "William, are you there?"
And then he says: "You go to bed—
I knew that stealthy step was you."
And I asked how and then he said:
"'Cause that's the way I used to do."

Sometimes when I come home at six
O'clock and hurry up my chores,
And get a big armful of sticks
Of wood and bring it all indoors,
My pop he comes and feels my head
And says: "You've been in swimmin'—you!'
When I asked how he knew, he said:
"'Cause that's the way I used to do."

Sometimes before a circus comes,
When I'm as willing as can be
To do my chores, and all my chums
They all take turns at helping me,
My pop, he pats 'em on the head
And says: "You like a circus, too?"
When I asked how he knew, he said:
"'Cause that's the way I used to do."

And lots of times when he gets mad
Enough to whip me and declares
He never saw another lad
Like I am—well, at last he spares
Me from a whipping and he lays
His rawhide down: "I can't whip you
For that, although I should," he says,
"'Cause that's the way I used to do."

GIBBS TO MOVE PAINT STORE ON MARCH TWENTY-FIFTH

To take care of increasing business and to carry a larger and more complete line of wall papers, paints, brushes, etc., Mr. Gibbs has found it is necessary to move his paint store at 704 E. Broadway to larger and more convenient quarters.

About March 25 his stock will be moved to 110 South Glendale avenue, just off Broadway and next to the Glendale Feed and Fuel company, where a new fireproof brick building is being erected by J. W. Caldwell of Los Angeles.

Mr. Gibbs must reduce his stock at once, as the Los Angeles Trust company, in whose building he is now located, will take over part of his store as soon as necessary alterations can be made. See his advertisement in another column.

GLENDALE ITEMS TRAVEL FAR

Arthur H. Keenan, secretary of the Merchants' association of Tonopah, Nevada, is enjoying a several weeks' rest in Glendale. News of the erection of additional units to the educational system of Glendale does travel. On reading a copy of the Tonopah Daily Bonanza, Mr. Keenan came across an article under the date of February 23, announcing the breaking of ground for the new $600,000 Glendale Union high school.

A broken promise may be mended, but it always shows the crack.

ST. LOUIS HAS OLDEST PRINTER IN THE U. S.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—Organization of "Old-Time Printers' clubs" in a number of cities recently has directed attention to the record of Major Philip F. Coghlan of St. Louis, dean of the old-timers, who recently celebrated his ninetieth birthday by working as usual a split trick at the case and proof desk on an afternoon paper here.

Major Coghlan has spent 75 years in the printing trade and is still an exceptionally capable proof reader. For forty years he has been employed on the same newspaper. In 1851 he became a member of the St. Louis Typographical Society, predecessor of the present Typographical Union, and since then has served as president of the local union several times. He served one term in the Missouri state legislature and has exercised influence in public life of the city for many years.

The aged printer's recollections of St. Louis include the great flood of 1844, the fire of 1849 when eighteen business blocks and twenty two steamboats were destroyed, and the coming of the first locomotive, which was brought by steamboat.

When the linotype machine was introduced, Coghlan, though well along in years, learned operating. He witnessed the passing of the picturesque "tramp printer," and holds the opinion that the modern craftsman is a great improvement over the "river pirates" of another day.

The major has four children living, eight grandchildren and sixteen great grandchildren. His military title is not purely honorary as he served as a commissioned officer in the Civil war. He is a brother of the Admiral Coghlan who attracted international notice in 1899 when he recited the "Hoch der Kaiser" verse, satirizing the "me und Gott" views of the German emperor, at a dinner. Fellow-members of the newspaper chapel here presented the major with a gift of $90 on his 90th birthday.

OUT OF MOUTHS OF BABES

"I'm hungry, mama," said four-year-old Elizabeth, who was shopping with her mother.

"Well," answered the mother, "there is a cake store on the corner; we'll buy some cakes."

After eating a couple of cakes Elizabeth said, "I'm thirsty, mama, let's hunt a drink store."

Little Nettie was crying as if in pain. "What's the matter, dear?" queried her grandmother. "Did you meet with an accident."

"No, grandma," sobbed Nettie. "It wasn't an accident! M-mama did it on purpose!"

Eat, drink and be merry today, for tomorrow the bill collector may call.
